Valley Lake. "It's totally worth the drive once you get here."

DenOuden, who writes about healthy travel and being active, admitted she had low expectations for the community, but she was pleased to find hiking and biking trails.

The visit Oct. 19-22 was the bloggers' second. A third is planned around the Ramona Pageant in April.

Trips are made at no cost to the city. The bloggers paid their travel expenses, and merchants and restaurants picked up the costs for lodging and food.

The bloggers had to apply for the trip and were picked based on the size of their readership. The only requirement was that they write at least two articles.

But there are no barriers on what they write. Although the tour doesn't include the more unsavory parts of the community, the bloggers can be honest about their experiences.

"I just want authentic experiences and reviews," said Leslie McLellan, who organized the event.

Bloggers end their tour of Hemet's Western Science Center, one of many locales they visited.

Travel and food blogger Deb Thompson of Michigan said if she isn't honest, she will lose readers, and she and the other bloggers depend on a large audience so they can sell advertisements on their sites.

Bringing in travel writers is nothing new for communities like Temecula and Riverside, which actively market their tourist locales like Old Town Temecula, the Temecula Valley Wine Country and the Mission Inn. The San Jacinto Valley has limited experience in the field. The impetus for these trips started when Lake Arrowhead-based McLellan met Thompson at a conference.

McLellan, who is paid by Hemet as a tourism consultant, invited Thompson to the area. That ended up being a five-week trip, and Thompson has been back three times since.

Thompson said she touts the valley's weather and affordability.

"The cost of visiting this region of Southern California is very reasonable," she said. "My dollars are going to go a lot farther."

She spoke of Hemet being a hub, as it's located about an hour from many popular attractions including the beach, the mountains, Palm Springs, San Diego and Los Angeles.

And there's another plus, bloggers say.

"People are always surprised how warm and caring the community is," Thompson said. "The people always draw me back."

Hemet City Councilwoman Linda Krupa is a member of a loose-knit tourism committee with McLellan. San Jacinto Mayor Andrew Kotyuk, former Hemet Councilwoman Lori VanArsdale and Hemet-San Jacinto Valley Chamber of Commerce President Michael Carle.

Krupa said having the bloggers spread the word about the area results in increased tourism. "It's an economic development engine that drives people to the valley."

She said there is anecdotal evidence that people have visited the community after reading travel blogs as the city has increased its efforts to market itself on social media and through the website visitsanjacintovalley.com.

"People say there's no return on investment when you do social media; that's not true," McLellan said. "There was about $65,000 worth of publicity the last time."

said Dayanerra Rodriguez, a 14-year-old freshman. "There's no person here who doesn't have a friend. You always feel included."

'SENSE OF RESPECT'
Principal Matthew Luttringer, who went to Notre Dame, said the school's identity goes beyond its crucifixes, statues, religious services and theology classes.

"When you come on to our campus and take away everything that's Catholic, you would still know we're a Catholic school by the way the kids treat each other and treat the teachers," Luttringer said. "There's a sense of respect, a sense of pride, giving of each other and giving to the community."

Notre Dame opened in September 1956 as an all-boys school with 15 freshmen taught by priests who lived in the rectory that is now the administration office. Over the years, the campus doubled from two to four classroom buildings, along with the addition of a library and a gym.

In 2013, Notre Dame became what Luttringer calls "an iPad school." Apple tablets replaced textbooks, saving students money and expanding learning, he said.

The school is moving to a classroom environment that blends online and traditional lessons. A block schedule allows 85-minute class periods four days a week, providing time for lectures, individualized instruction and group projects, Luttringer said.

Notre Dame has class sizes of 18 students per teacher, making it easier for struggling students to get help. "It's a small-school environment, so you don't have to worry about not getting enough attention from the teacher," said David Puma, a 17-year-old senior who plays basketball and runs track and cross country.

Biology students recently took a trip to the UC Riverside genetics lab, where they learned about DNA sequencing, Beatty said.

"The idea is to parallel our classroom content with experiences that bring that content to life," he said.

One of Luttringer's goals is to make Notre Dame, which has annual tuition of $7,500, affordable for more families. About 1 in 5 students receives financial aid, he said.

"Every Catholic child in this city should have the opportunity to go to a Catholic high school if they want," he said. "I would like to see it so it's funded from others and not just the parents."

The school is increasing marketing efforts and hopes to get additional financial support to build enrollment and expand its presence in the community, Luttringer said.

Mariella Gallegos, a 17-year-old senior, appreciates the sacrifice her parents made to send her to Notre Dame. "I feel like I've grown more as a person and as a student to be ready for the future that comes after high school," said Gallegos, who plans to study immigration law in college.

Homeless ex-Marine, his family get new home

Rental is part of a program that helps vets find permanent residence.

For former Marine Darrin Snyder and his family, home used to be the Walmart parking lot, free campsites, cheap motels or anywhere else they could park their minivan and cargo trailer and stay the night.

Snyder, who traveled with his family to San Bernardino County from Virginia Beach in August in search of work as a recreational therapist with the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, wanted more for his family, but he never expected what he got Thursday: a spacious, five-bedroom, three-bath house in a quiet Victorville neighborhood, near La Mesa and Topaz roads.

"I think this is pretty awesome. Every time I look at all of this, I think it's a dream," said Snyder, 49, inside his new home Thursday. He was surrounded by representatives from the San Bernardino nonprofit Knowledge & Education for Your Success, which goes by the acronym KEYS. The nonprofit assists homeless or poverty-stricken families in finding homes.

Snyder is among the dozens of veterans recently placed in permanent housing by KEYS and its affiliate partners, including San Bernardino County Department of Behavioral Health and the Loma Linda Veterans Affairs hospital. It is part of an ongoing effort to house all the county's homeless veterans and their families. The Snyder family's new home has a spacious backyard, a fireplace in the upstairs master bedroom and an intercom system that allows family members to communicate with one another from any room in the house.

Snyder, who served in the Marines from 1985 to 1988 and uses a wheelchair because of myriad ailments, including a herniated disk, two blown knees and diabetes, said the VA will be installing a stairlift in his new home so he can have access to the upstairs master bedroom. Until then, he plans to occupy the downstairs bedroom.

Also, the San Bernardino nonprofit Rolling Start, which provides resources and advocacy for disabled people, will have a wheelchair ramp built to access the house, Snyder said.

KEYS program manager Julie Burnett said the Snyder family is on a one-year lease, with an option to renew. KEYS picked up the tab for the security deposit and first month's rent of $1,500, and then the need to continue assisting the Snyders financially will be assessed on a monthly basis.

Snyder is in the process of securing a job as a recreational therapist at Corcoran state prison's substance abuse treatment facility. He plans to commute to the prison, camp out in his 6-by-10 cargo trailer during the workweek and spend the weekends at his Victorville residence.

"I still get to come back to this place," Snyder said with a grin. Snyder's daughters were just as elated as he was about their new home. "Motel hopping always lutely sucks. I hope to never be in that situation ever again," said his oldest daughter, Carrie "Allie" Snyder, 22, holding her infant daughter Peyton outside their new home Thursday.

She said living in transition the past four months was an eye-opening experience. "It definitely gives you a whole new perspective and empathy for people living on the streets," Allie said.

Snyder's youngest daughter, Katie, said KEYS and its partner agencies went above and beyond what she and her family anticipated. "They went way out of their way," said Katie Snyder, 20, noting that Heroes Warehouse Inc. in Fontana donated a couch, refrigerator, three queen size beds, a desk and three floor-to-ceiling bookshelves.

The Snyder family moved into the home just in time to enjoy the holidays. Although the Snyders plan to have Thanksgiving dinner at their church, they intend to enjoy Christmas at home.

"He's excited because he gets to decorate this year," Katie Snyder said of her father. Darrin Snyder said he's going to use the $500 Visa gift card he just received for participating in the Detroit Marathon last month for Christmas presents. He said he has participated in many marathons, representing the Achilles Freedom Team for Wounded Veterans, which funded his trip to Detroit last month.

"Peyton's going to have a great Christmas this year," he said of his granddaughter.
